CRIME COMPOUNDED

That Is What the Police Do When They See the Laws Violated and Let the Offenders Go.

An Infamous and Unlawful Publication of Which the Police Take No Notice.

The Police Manual defines the duties of the Chief of Police and the Record Shows They Have Not Been Performed—Swindlers and Criminals Permitted to Dupe the Poor and Ignorant Under the Very Eyes of the Police Without Interference From the Authorities.

The Chief of Police shall be the commanding officer of the entire police force, subject to the rules of the board and its orders. He shall devote his whole time and energy exclusively to the discharge of his duties AND NOT THAT ALL LAWS OF THE STATE AND ORDINANCES OF THE CITY ARE ENFORCED AS FAR AS POSSIBLE BY THE FORCE UNDER HIS COMMAND, AND ALL OFFENDERS REPORTED TO THE PROPER TRIBUNALS FOR TRIAL. He shall see that the rules prescribed by the board are strictly observed and enforced. All general orders issued by him shall be submitted to the board before promulgation. In cases of emergency he may issue orders, handle and dispose of the entire force of the city as he may deem necessary, reporting his action and the reason therefor to the board.—[Rule 19 of the manual governing the St. Louis Police Department.]

Chief of Police Anton Heubler has violated this rule. For two years he has seen the law prohibiting the publication of lottery advertisements violated without making a solitary attempt to punish the offenders. He has known the rule and seen the offenders. If he was arraigned before the Board of Police Commissioners he could make no possible defense, for he is guilty of too many and too open violations of the law laid down for him.

For ten years no Chief of Police has dared to leave such an opening in his official armor, no matter how friendly the Board of Police Commissioners might pretend to be.

What's the Matter Now? Chief of Police Heubler is ordinarily a careful officer. He has seen half a dozen chiefs decapitated for much less than what he is undeniably guilty of; already guilty beyond question of gross negligence in this particular, when stirred to activity he makes the latest kind of an attack on the lottery criminals.

IS CHIEF OF POLICE HUEBLER OBEYING ORDERS THAT HAVE BEEN SECRETLY GIVEN HIM BY THE PUBLIC BURGLAR ABOUT ENFORCING THE LAW? Since that letter stir the police have ceased to make even a pretense of activity in the lottery cases and are now drifting along in the same easy-going way they used to travel though they know that they are violating their oath and the law. The police pretended to prosecute the lottery man and the lottery advertisers, but the prosecutions and the arrests are only cloak.

THE "EXAMPLES OF PROTECTION" which they threaten to maintain to shield them from punishment. The lottery men want protection from the law. They look to the police for it and they get it, and when they are fired being arrested they send out word that the arrests must stop, and the machinery of the police force ceases to move. At the command of lottery men it stands still and the arrests are only cloak.

Why has Chief Heubler discontinued raiding? Why have the police made no attempt for a week to catch any of the hundred vendors who have been selling tickets daily and openly? Each sale is a violation of the law, and it is just as much the duty of the Chief of Police to have the seller arrested as it is his duty to see that thieves and murderers are discovered and caught.

In addition to the rule quoted from the manual, specific instructions have been given to arrest all violators of the lottery law, whether the violation consist of selling tickets, setting up lottery or advertising drawings.

THIS ORDER LEFT NO DISCRETION with the commanding officer of the force. It was direct and plain, and it has been obeyed. It has not been obeyed, it has been ignored, it has been absolutely violated.

It is well known that the commissioners made that order for the purpose of shifting the responsibility to the shoulders of Chief Heubler. But the order on the board has been given no more consideration than if it had never been made, and the commissioners reason for this is plain. The commission only wanted to get the lottery business off their hands and they thought they have succeeded. If their order is not obeyed they do not care. They are rid of the thing and that is all they want. And why should the police laugh at and ignore a positive order issued to them by the board?

What a farce the whole business is! A man might manage his private business in that way if he chose.

BORDERS ON CRIME when public officers in whose care is placed the safety of the community and sworn enforcement of the laws of the State are so shamefully negligent and with such persistent determination refuse to interrupt a prohibited business or punish the men who carry it on.

He shall devote his whole time and energy exclusively to the discharge of his duties. He devotes none of his time and none of his energy to the duty of arresting violators of the lottery law who are known to be guilty of offenses.

disreputable sheet publishes daily and with SUSPICIOUS BOLDNESS the advertisements of every known lottery. As many as three separate offenses, so declared by Vice-President Overall, have been committed in one day and one at least every day. The police have seen these crimes committed, have the evidence, have no reason, excuse for not proceeding against the offender, yet, although the violations of the law have continued over a period of two years, they have only worn out three warrants and having done that, under the pressure of public criticism, and the threat of a fine, they have let the criminals continue their crimes because they are too lazy to do anything more. As well let a murderer continue to kill because he has been prosecuted for one offense. Only yesterday the cupid of one foolish creature on the poor with a prospect of a large reward and sudden wealth. It was one of the most infamous and criminal who are led by the police, appointed and paid to protect citizens from just such a prospect. It was one of the most infamous and criminal who are led by the police, appointed and paid to protect citizens from just such a prospect. It was one of the most infamous and criminal who are led by the police, appointed and paid to protect citizens from just such a prospect.

JOHN W. NOBLE ARRIVES. THE SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR REACHES THE CITY THIS MORNING.

A Flying Trip to Attend to His Private Business. Noble, Secretary of the Interior, arrived in the city on the early train from Washington and at once drove to the Laclede Hotel. Gen. Noble was entirely alone and his arrival was known to but very few. He was assigned to parlors 10 and 11 on the first floor and there received such of his friends as were aware of his presence in the city.

GEN. NOBLE'S APPEARANCE. A representative of the POST-DISPATCH called upon Gen. Noble to ascertain the object of his visit to this city. The cares of office have apparently set very light upon the Secretary of the Interior. His face is fresh, his hair and beard show as few streaks of gray as when he left St. Louis to take charge of the Interior portfolio; his step is as light and quick, and his bearing as erect and soldierly as ever was, and he has made a slight gain of avoirdupois. In fact, there has been little change in the appearance of the Secretary of the Interior since he left his law office in this city to become one of the most important members of the Administration, and such change as there is, appears to have been for the better.

A BUSINESS VISIT. "What is the object of your visit, Gen. Noble?" "Simply to attend to my private business, and to get a rest. I left here with a great many matters unsettled, and have for several months been looking for an opportunity to return. On several occasions I have tried to do so, but have found that it was impossible. I hoped to have reached here in time for the decennial celebration of Blair Post, which took place last Saturday night, but I could not get away until after the meeting of Congress. When I did leave I was as quiet as possible about it and few knew of my intention. My visit has no public significance, being only to attend to my private business."

THE POLITICAL SITUATION. "How was the President's message received?" "Very well, indeed. As far as I can judge as to what his real feelings consider it a most statesmanlike and well-considered document, and it has given very great satisfaction."

"What is the feeling among the Republicans in Congress?" "They are enthusiastic and united. There is nothing like dissension or quarrelling in the party, but all stand firmly together, and will not be divided by anything that may arise. The majority on the Republican side of the House is small, but it is as united as the stars in the sky."

"Can you say anything about the contest for the St. Louis Postmastership?" "I can say nothing about it. It is not in my department," said Noble with a laugh, "and I can say nothing about it."

"There are reports to the effect that you left Washington to avoid having anything to do with the matter?" "There are a number of reports in circulation about various subjects with no more basis than the wind, and I am not in the habit of running away to avoid responsibility."

THE WORLD'S FAIR. "What about the World's Fair, and the chances of St. Louis?" "I have carefully watched what has been done, and believe that St. Louis has as good a chance as any city. I was more than pleased at the energy and generosity manifested by the merchants and members of the Executive Committee. St. Louis certainly deserves success, for it has done nobly. I do not feel at liberty to speak as freely as I would like to, but can say that I am as much a friend of St. Louis as I ever was, and will do as much for it as in former times. It is delightful to me to see the old place again. I have been wavered in my affection for St. Louis, and never shall."

Gen. Noble declined to discuss appointments of any kind. As to the political situation he expressed himself as a Republican success in the future. The Secretary of the Interior became known in Grand Army circles preparations for rendering him a grand reception were inaugurated. At 10 o'clock to-morrow night Blair Post, of which Gen. Noble was formerly commander, will hold a special meeting in his honor, to which comrades of all other posts have been invited.

He is the monthly meeting of the Loyal Legion will be held at the Laclede Hotel on Saturday night, and Gen. Noble, who is a companion, will attend. He will attend the city until Sunday night, and may remain longer. His earliest callers were J. O. Churchill, John St. Orick, F. P. Hodges, C. H. Christian, Nelson Cole, W. H. Hodges, C. H. Christian and Thos. B. Rodgers.

Russell H. Harrison arrived in the city from Indianapolis this morning and registered at the Lindell. He stated that his visit is purely a business one. In the course of the day he called upon the Secretary of the Interior and had a long conversation with him.

SCHOOL NEWS. Testimonial Presented to Mr. Koenig—Boiler Controversy. The employees in the Secretary's and Superintendent's offices of the School Board presented a very elegant testimonial to Mr. William Koenig, the retiring member from the Sixth District, yesterday. The testimonial was executed by a well-known local expert, and was a sample of the perfection of the penman's art. Mr. Koenig was very popular with the board's employees, and on retiring from the office he sent beautiful baskets of flowers to both the Secretary's and Superintendent's offices as tokens of his appreciation of the assistance they had given him in the performance of his duties as Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee.

A sub-committee of the Building Committee went out to the Compton School-house this morning for the purpose of examining the new furnace recently put in that building. The sub-committee appointed to wait on Boiler Inspector McClellan to report to the Building Committee at the meeting to-morrow evening. The members of the Building Committee are not a little wrought up over some of the statements which Capt. McClellan has been making in regard to the management of boilers in the school houses by inspectors. They say the inspectors are thoroughly ignorant of the business, and are not able to do their duty. They say it is ridiculous to think that they can secure first-class service from the boiler makers and pay them only $70 and $80 a month, and expect them to clean the building, as well as attend to the steam-heating.

PENNY & GENTILES

A GREAT DEAL OF WIND. THE ENGLISH BREWERY SYNDICATE GENERALLY WILD AND VISIONARY.

Many of the Promoters Irresponsible and Unauthorised.—The St. Louis Deal emphatically Denied.—Other Unfounded Rumors.—What a Brewery Must Earn—Value of Stocks in London.

ETHER or not an English syndicate will ever come into possession of any considerable portion of the stock of the St. Louis Brewing Association, owned by the consolidated breweries, nothing has been heard from them since they left the city several THERE'S Only one Christmas show in this town worth going to see, and that's at Barr's.

JIM, JOHN, JO AND BILL.

That's so boys. You see I brought my whole pack to Barr's. Don't let anybody fool you into spending your nickels anywhere else, either. I've got beautiful presents for everybody that you may buy awfully cheap.

SANTA CLAUS.

BOUND to come to Barr's to-morrow, you are—A large satin-lined plush collar and cuff box for 67 cents 'll fetch you, and when you get here you'll find thousands of beautiful things so cheap you'll resolve not to spend one cent outside of Barr's.

Another special, fine silk plush work box, satin lined; all fitted up, with mirror, a Barr bargain at 50 cents.

ABISQUE head doll for 25 cents!! open and shut eyes, jointed body, 12 1/2 inches long!

Where's the rest of the Holiday trade? They're just about eclipsed. Our doll stock overshadows all the rest put together. No matter how cheap you see a doll anywhere else, we guarantee to sell you a better one much cheaper.

Then, only please come in the morning before the afternoon crush drives us all nearly distracted.

REALLY and truly no other "ad" in this paper is worth the reading, not worth the wear and tear on the brain. They're mere type talk, the bargains are only type bargains—other folk's bargains are. Now we'll tell you what we'll do. We'll put out in Linen Dept a big stack of fringed cloths, tidies, towels, bleached and cream damask napkins, all odds and ends,—also short length sheetings, pillow casings, etc., all at a big discount on Friday, and you come down and see if it isn't so.

REMEMBER Friday is Barr's big discount day.

Short lengths of goods in every department in the house at discount prices. And while you're remembering, just include Bookland.

Standard books, beautifully bound gift books, toy books, picture books, novels; everything and anything in booklore, and as to prices—well, that part of it's all right, they're the cheapest in the world, we promise you that.

SOME folks write cross-eyed bargains. If it was'n't Barr's offering beautiful Silk handkerchiefs at 15 and 20 cents apiece you'd think it a cross-eyed bargain. All the world's going to Barr's special Friday silk handkerchief sale.

Do shop in the morning, just as early as you can get down, or else don't complain of inattention. How can we wait upon everybody in the dreadful afternoon crush as well as in the morning, when everybody's fresh and rested and when elbow room is a possibility.

We invite you to do all your holiday shopping at Barr's Great Christmas Bazaar.

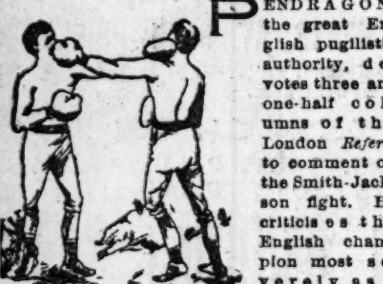

You'll find everything you want right here, only it'll be a little better 'n you looked for and some cheaper.

You see we're just trying to see how big we can make our bargains. We want all the world to become so well acquainted with us in a bargain way that they'll pin their faith forever to the Wm. Barr Dry Goods Co., Sixth, Olive and Locust streets, St. Louis.

PENDRAGON'S OPINION.

THE ENGLISH PUGILISTIC WRITER ON THE SMITH-JACKSON FIGHT.

Jackson Not the Wonder He Is Credited With Being and Smith an Unworthy Champion of England—A Doubt About the Battle Having Been on Its Merits—General Sporting News.

PENDRAGON, the greatest English pugilistic authority, devotes three and one-half columns of the London Referee to comment on the Smith-Jackson fight. He criticizes the English champion most severely as a fighter and also intimates very strongly that Jackson was not on his merits. The English writer does not think very highly of the ability of Jackson, whom he rather offensively refers to as a "nigger." He claims the Australian is greatly overestimated and is not a wonder and not as good a man with bare knuckles as his fellow countryman, Frank P. Sullivan. The following is an extract from Pendragon's article on the meeting:

"The fight, as it is called, lasted six minutes, exactly one minute of which was spent by the men resting in their corners, and all but another was wasted in preliminary sparring. Yet the remaining four minutes were fully sufficient to show that, providing this was a true-run fight, Smith had met one who is immeasurably his superior. Except where accident has had its effect it is not easy to remember so rapid a rise on the one side and so commensurate a fall on the other. Also short as was the contest, Smith offered three opportunities for his disqualification. Of the first two, his hitting Jackson a long way below the belt and his giving him the shoulder, the referee took no notice. Both acts might have been intentional, though they did not look like it, and besides, in a contest for points they could have been set against him in summing up at the end of the fight. The third offense was too wanton and too wicked to be passed over. It was the referee rising in his place and his righteous wrath as well, disfigured the cheek of the Englishman. He was as good as dead as soon as the uproar aroused by Smith's third deliberate endeavor to evade his contract allowed him to throw himself on the floor. The final foul, all readers who care to know by this time know, was a back kick."

a thing which no man would think of attempting while he had the gloves on unless he was anxious above all things to get the better of his opponent. This piece of bad work has not even the merit of originality. A good and who can hit hard, and especially to foul him by wrestling, and thus avoid a passing, has for long been a favorite with the boxing professional, does not mind how unbecomingly he resorts to the use of his hands. Smith's dearest friends cannot well deny that as things were going he saved himself from a great thrashing by his cowardly, unbecomingly resorting to the use of his hands. MR. AND MRS. WELSH EXPECTED TO KISS AND MAKE UP AGAIN.

An Aged Couple Who Have Separated and Become Friendly Again After Six Years.

The Welsh divorce case, which entertained a large number of spectators in Judge Fisher's court yesterday, was not taken up to-day, and there was talk of another compromise. John D. Johnson, for Mr. Welsh, and W. B. Thompson, for Mrs. Welsh, agreed to submit the question of alimony in briefs and introduce no other testimony. The couple were married in 1873 and have lived on their little garden patch in Ellendale up to the beginning of this year. A young man who has known the couple for ten years said the old folks could live happily together if they were not alone, but the wife being so sensitive and easily led, her alleged friends carry tales to her from her husband and from her to her husband, and in this way constantly keep them at war. The old gentleman is supposed to have considerable money hidden about the house he lives in, and it is said some outside parties are trying to get the wife divorced and secure a large sum of alimony and "take care of it for her." It is doubtful if Judge Fisher will grant a divorce, though Mr. Welsh says he will beg from door to door rather than live with Dick Welsh, the man who has made this same declaration half a dozen times before, however, and has returned to his husband and friends of both parties hope to reconcile them again.

Another Aged Couple Seeking a Decree.

Another divorce case which has taken up a large part of Judge Fisher's court is that of Friska Becher against Franz X. Becher, an aged couple who were joined in the holy bonds of wedlock November 10, 1862, twenty-seven years ago. The wife eludes her husband's grasp and is said to be a very beautiful woman. She would accuse her husband of infidelity and call her vile names. She has refused to cohabit with her husband because he does not want to pay alimony and is represented by Henry Kortjoh. Joseph T. Fox was retained for the defense of the wife in the case. A daughter, 25 years of age, who takes sides with the mother.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—The Times to-day prints this: A hero whom Wall Street has not lately had much chance to celebrate made stock market hearts glad yesterday by reappearing. Mr. Edwin Gould, the great financier, was in Wall Street in this attraction. Drury tales have been current to the effect that this interesting young man had reformed and was pledged to his father never more to toy with the stock market, or at least never to be so utterly wicked as to sell "short" his parent's railroad stocks. And apparently the lively lad did struggle to keep in the narrow path. He had been in the market for two or three years, and had made a fortune. It happened lately—or so, at least, the story goes in Wall Street—it happened that Mr. Gould's elder son, George, organized a pool of speculators in the market. The pool was to be higher figures. Jay Gould himself is reported not only to have approved of the scheme, but to have taken a personal interest in it. Funds were deposited, brokers were hired, and all the manipulative machinery was set in motion. The pool was to be a success. The pool was to be a success. The pool was to be a success.

Jay Gould himself is reported not only to have approved of the scheme, but to have taken a personal interest in it. Funds were deposited, brokers were hired, and all the manipulative machinery was set in motion. The pool was to be a success. The pool was to be a success. The pool was to be a success.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—The Times to-day prints this: A hero whom Wall Street has not lately had much chance to celebrate made stock market hearts glad yesterday by reappearing. Mr. Edwin Gould, the great financier, was in Wall Street in this attraction. Drury tales have been current to the effect that this interesting young man had reformed and was pledged to his father never more to toy with the stock market, or at least never to be so utterly wicked as to sell "short" his parent's railroad stocks. And apparently the lively lad did struggle to keep in the narrow path. He had been in the market for two or three years, and had made a fortune. It happened lately—or so, at least, the story goes in Wall Street—it happened that Mr. Gould's elder son, George, organized a pool of speculators in the market. The pool was to be higher figures. Jay Gould himself is reported not only to have approved of the scheme, but to have taken a personal interest in it. Funds were deposited, brokers were hired, and all the manipulative machinery was set in motion. The pool was to be a success. The pool was to be a success. The pool was to be a success.
